Call Of Duty World At War Repack Mr DJ 64 Bit PC Game Install.Q: deleting a file with a negative deletion time in the database I am storing in the database the files that are in use in my system. One of the files (called "SCRIPT.sh") was "Permanently deleted" in the database. As a result, once in a while I get this error "No script file found for script called 'SCRIPT.sh'" when I try to run the script. I would like to be able to delete the "SCRIPT.sh" file as it is not a problem when the "SCRIPT.sh" file is deleted. However, the problem I have is that when I try to delete it, it is showing as "deletion time in the database is negative" Can someone tell me how to delete it? I use (Microsoft SQL Server 2017) Example Delete Scripts Time 13/08/2018 00:00:00 A: Based on the information you have provided, it looks like the "deletion time" is set to the negative time you were given. This normally happens when either the system is not keeping up with the operations it is supposed to be processing or when something went wrong with the system. I have a few things to suggest: If this is a normal procedure, what would happen if the table had a larger number of rows? If you could create the table with a CHECK constraint for deletion time, this would prevent you from making an entry that was more than 60 seconds in the future (if the system is keeping up with the data, it will catch this error quickly). I am going to make a couple assumptions about how your tables are constructed. The first assumption is that this was a procedure called from a view (or, more likely, a stored procedure) and you have stored the result in a table. The second assumption is that the original system that processes this view or procedure will not be keeping up with the data and is therefore failing.

CREATE TABLE dbo.CancelCompletedProcedures AS
