Q: How to create a horizontal scroll bar on a canvas I have a canvas where I draw a line. When I extend the canvas to 100% of the view port I want to see the full line. My problem is when I add a horizontal scroll bar it always covers the bottom part of the line. I tried to insert a blank rect and move its scroll to the right so the horizontal scroll would go over the line but this don't work. The only solution I found is to increase the canvas size horizontally and add the blank rect with the scroll applied to it but this is not a solution because I think it is bad practice to increase the canvas size.

A: You could draw the line to a temporary element, and then put the draw() call in a Javascript setTimeout. This way, the line will keep on animating as the user scrolls, and you will get the correct output.

var canvas = document.querySelector('canvas'), ctx = canvas.getContext('2d'), x = canvas.width, y = canvas.height, line = document.createElement('div'), lineLeft = x / 2; ctx.lineWidth = 3; ctx.strokeStyle = "#aaa"; ctx.beginPath(); ctx.
