I received this gift from my secret santa a while ago and finally get around to posting it today! I am being moved to a new apartment soon and I'm excited to display this immediately. I was already planning on having art pieces on the walls. I was in no way expecting this, so THANK YOU! It's a perfect addition to my new surroundings, and I hope you get some use out of it as well. Thank you! Edit I can't thank my secret santa enough! He generously included a Moth Trap in the bottom of the box!! Thank you! UPDATE: He sent me a second package today!! Thank you so much for these!! They are awesome! I'm looking forward to creating more art with them!Q: How to get the system URL for the Maven appserver for Karaf? I am using Maven and the Karaf OSGi runtime. I installed Karaf as an OSGi bundle. What is the directory that specifies the URL for the Maven appserver on which Maven- b7e8fdf5c8

CHANGELOG v0.31 Added the application language selection feature. v0.3 Added the application icon on the home page. v0.2 version 0.2 was released to public. Changelog: 0.31 Added the application language selection feature. 0.3 Added the application icon on the home page. 0.2 version 0.2 was released to public.Q: Three.js, Scene.update() resize I am trying to do something like this: I have a scene and a camera. camera.enabled is set to true. When I set camera.left to the mouse position, scene.update() is called and the scene is changed. I want to do the same, but when I resize the window the scene keep being the old size and doesn't resize, although the camera rotates and changes the position of the objects. How can I make the scene resize? A: I think you are making the mistake of thinking that the scene or the camera is the same as the view. I believe you want to make changes to the camera and have the rendering of the scene and camera update to match the view. To do that, look at THREE.OrbitControls and THREE.TrackballControls. They are two camera controls which are able to update in response to the user. If you use the example, you'll see that the view changes in response to the mouse position. In your case, you want to look at updating the position of your camera in response to changes in size. Q: How to reset AngularJS to initial state There are two routes (Home, Other) on my AngularJS application. On the Home page, my user is redirecting to other page with then I need to reset the modal to be displayed on the first view. This modal is actually a Bootstrap modal. How can I do this? Edit: I have tried $location.path("/Home
