Cut a hole in the bottom of the cooler for drainage.Q: How to calculate $\int_0^{\infty} e^{-\lambda x}(1-e^{-\alpha x})(1-e^{-\beta x})dx$? Is there a way to calculate this integral? I know that $\int_0^{\infty} e^{-\lambda x}(1-e^{-\alpha x})dx = \frac{1}{\alpha}$ Thanks! A: Using your integral (the initial αx makes no difference, as we can factor out α) one can rearrange the function as follows : $\int_0^{\infty} (1-e^{-(x+\beta)})e^{-\lambda x} dx = \int_0^{\infty} e^{-\lambda x} - e^{-(x+\beta)} e^{-\lambda x} dx$ Now the integral on the right has a closed form in terms of a Barnes G-function, and hence the integral on the left is a linear combination of hypergeometric functions of the same type. It's my impression that you're dealing with some special function, so I'll leave it to you to work out the coefficients. A new evaluation technique of bacterial biofilms based on the electrical characterization of permittivity and dielectric dispersion. The aim of this work is to obtain a new method to assess and evaluate the therapeutic activities of antibiotics against bacterial biofilms. A novel method based on the electrical characterization of permittivity and dielectric dispersion was developed. The effect of antibiotics against biofilms was studied using two bacterial species; Pseudomonas aeruginosa and Escherichia coli. The electrical analysis of samples with and without biofilms was performed in the frequency range from 300 MHz to 3 GHz. The data obtained from both bacteria biofilms samples showed that the permittivity value is higher than the corresponding value of the corresponding samples without bacteria biofilms. The electrical characterization of samples with and without biofilms has enabled the determination of the biofilm depth. It was determined that the full thickness of bio
