Box Art: Once the final bell has sounded or the time for exams is over, there is still one more important matter that comes into focus. What's next? I don't have as many responsibilities at school as during the summer so I am not looking forward to the many last-minute documents to do. Now for me this also means that I have the opportunity to catch up on newer social media: pinterest, instagram, tumblr, twitter etc. There are many blogs on the web about academics and things that interests a student. I just started reading them about students, motivation in college, procrastination, creative ways to study, tips on writing essays and even autobiographies. I also read and thought about how it is not sufficient to follow the same study strategy the entire time. There is such a thing as learning by practicing and having learnings in the everyday situations. So from time to time I am also trying to implement this in my schedule of study. In order to get this going I am borrowing ideas and watch how others manage. I guess it is a lot easier for students who have a lot less to do and have something to write about everyday. I guess I can share my blabbering and snippets of knowledge. They might inspire some of you out there. I am also going to write about my own experiences so that it might help you more with planning your study time. Lego Dimensions (2018) Lego Dimensions is a video game that was developed by TT Fusion and published by Warner Bros. Interactive Entertainment. It is based on the collectible minifigures produced by Lego and its subsidiaries. The game was released on the Xbox One, PlayStation 4, Xbox One, and PC on September 27, 2018, with a Nintendo Switch version released the next day. Gameplay Lego Dimensions is a two-player co-op game, in the same vein of Lego Marvel Super

Heroes. For the Nintendo Switch version, Lego Dimensions utilizes the Nintendo Switch's functionality to allow two players to play simultaneously. Unlike Lego Marvel Super Heroes, there are 13 characters for each side to choose from before they start playing. It also has a mode where the player

(N) President Trump spoke Tuesday about the government ddown with House Minority Leader Nancy Pelosi and Senate ority Leader Chuck Schumer, setting the stage for what could be ntentious sit-in at the White House. "I think the reason the ddown is happening is because of a lack of leadership," Trump during a meeting with the Democratic leaders, which he said ed 75 minutes. "A lot of good things happened during this period, to see that progress under your leadership that I understand re very proud of." During the Tuesday sit-down, Trump also said thought Pelosi had agreed to his proposal on helping lead a "false ' operation on the southern border and thus far she had not. And mp told reporters at the Capitol that a bill could be passed if cy Pelosi would agree to put a new offer on the table. In her own
