NONE HAVE BEEN IN THE FORCE FOR OVER A WEEK Hello all, I will start explaining here since I have not been on the forums for nearly 3 weeks. I am not going to go into detail about what my personal life is like since this thread is not about that. It's about the development of Dark Echo and me and what is going on. For those of you who don't know what Dark Echo is. It is a fantasy action RPG game that I am currently developing with a small team of developers. So where is it now? The game is being developed in Unity. I have about a month left. It is a visual novel type game where you make choices and the plot progresses. So it's not a game where you are not in control of what happens. Each time you play the game a different story will be created where you can change certain things, like for example- The Emperor choose you as his successor, and you are given the option to become leader of the Elden Ring Cracked Accounts, or you can screw it all up by not doing anything. So that is going to happen within the game. My game is at a point where I can start building content. One thing that is on my mind right now is what should I do with the character development, do I keep it medieval or make it futuristic. My initial thought was make it modern. Then I thought, make it medieval, since it would give it this like feeling of nostalgia. As of right now, I think I am going to make it both medieval and futuristic. So that is just an idea I had recently. Now for some new information that is what is going on right now. You may remember that I have mentioned before that I am developing a music based game and doing my own music, I finally have something that I am very happy with and that is written all in one song that I can use for Dark Echo. I am in the middle of taking voice acting classes, and I really like what I have been learning. This is something that I have never tried before and I am really excited. I have 2 voice

There's nothing that should surprise us about politics. But then, there's no politics that shouldn't surprise us. Whatever we say or do, be it winking during a TV show, wearing a placard to a rally or speaking out on Facebook, our political leanings can be discerned and categorized. The past week has been a roller-coaster of emotions for us as Americans. Although we all had our own reasons for being upset or sad about something, it is at times difficult to find a common ground. Unless it's the Golden State Warriors' run to win the NBA Championship. That is the one time when you can have fun with your politics. We were able to set aside our disagreements as we all cheered for the Warriors, who have done wonders for the Golden State community. Local politics have always been part of our lives. In grade school and throughout high school, you would constantly hear about how the great man could bring jobs to his/her district. The first and most constant source of local politics is the primary election. It's when we see how much support we have to continue to support a certain candidate. The primary is the most important day, where a candidate has to face a barrage of attacks by their opponents to win the primary. Once elected, there is the general election to come. It's when the candidates are all selected from the primary, such as county commissioners. Here, we see the candidates try to get the majority of votes to represent their district. The regular election, however, is the one we can put our politics in. This is when we realize how all of the politicians do in their roles. All of the local and state positions fill up around the district on a rotating basis. The district is sent to a county and county, followed by state, and state representatives, until we are at the federal level. It's not easy to hit all of the positions that certain politicians are sitting in. But that is where the enjoyment comes in. If we can't all agree on whether or not that politician is doing a good job, that's their right to not agree, just like we have the right to disagree with them. However
