“The FIFA World Cup is the biggest sporting event in the world, and FIFA 22 will be the official videogame of the FIFA World Cup Russia 2018,” said Piers Coakley, FIFA Executive Producer. “Working closely with leading FIFA partner EA SPORTS, we have created a game that is authentic to the World Cup. We have innovated in the best possible way with the player-focused ‘HyperMotion Technology’ to build a game that’s able to reflect the tremendous intensity and high energy of the event, be it on the pitch or in the stands.” FIFA 22 will be available for Xbox One and PS4 starting August 9 in North America and August 12 in Europe. FIFA 22 Controller The new FIFA 18 controller utilises a new 2.4 GHz wireless radio frequency system with short-range communication capability, as well as Bluetooth and 2.4 GHz Wi-Fi. This utilises an improved 45mm dual-zone button arrangement over the 61mm dual-zone of the previous generation FIFA 18 controller. Players can also connect wirelessly to the Match Engine through the new controller. This system is comprised of Sony and Microsoft’s “Location and Movement Sensor”, or LMS, the Sensor Pedestal and a pair of Bluetooth LE 4.0 transceivers, which form an intelligent self-updating sensing system that communicates data from game sensors (distance, vertical, horizontal, and rotational position) to the console via the controller. Multiplayer Experience on FIFA.com The FIFA Community is also getting an upgraded user experience with the debut of the FIFA 2018 Ultimate Team, a new Matchmade Matchmaking tool on FIFA.com, the launch of the FIFA Ultimate Team website, and much more. • Players can quickly find nearby opponents to play with using the Matchmade Matchmaking feature. Players can create or join a competitive online match with the option to search and filter for skill levels, game mode and player roles. • The FIFA 2018 Ultimate Team website is the latest destination for the digital version of the FIFA Ultimate Team. This platform features comprehensive information, an interactive feature hub, and a selection of game modes all accessible via the new browser-based Matchmaking tool. • Players can continue their journey on FIFA.com in the FIFA 18 Ultimate Team by securing the required coins, packs, contracts and players to build
