I know that the Brickhouse uses the infinite Spike ability that occurs when a kill is performed on a player by other players as the source of power, and the Shaolin uses the correcties provided by the Cyclops hud. But what are the real differences between them? A: A Brickhouse only has the ability to heal with the infinite spike and thus is also called "infinite heal". A brickhouse also has the ability to cast decoy, decoy as a passive. The brickhouse, however, is not a brickmasta as it cannot chain. Brickmasta has the ability to use the correcties provided by the Cyclops hud, and has an infinite heal that comes from the infinite spike. Shaolin has the ability to inflict damage to the nearby enemy players and take damage, they have the ability to build up block damage and the cyclops correctie but can not use the infinite heal. Brickhouse is much weaker compared to Shaolin, especially when the brickhouse has never played. It's a somewhat useless class, but if you want to just be really cheap and turn a 3\$ advantage into a 5\$ advantage, then brickhouse is your class. Shaolin can easily be tanked as they do little damage compared to the other classes. They can take more damage and still be tanky. I would recommend playing with a shaolin as it is overall, much better than a brickhouse. EDIT: Since this answer was fairly old, I went onto the lbalon forums and posted this reply (found here). Q: Evaluation of  $\lim_{x \rightarrow 0} \frac{\sin(x)\cos(x)}{1+x^2}$  My question is about evaluating the following limit:  $\lim_{x \rightarrow 0} \frac{\sin(x)\cos(x)}{1+x^2}$

I'm using the following command to build a Debian package: make check make CHECK_PLATFORM=linux What is the difference between makecheck and make check? A: According to The GNU Project Manual, make check calls make CHECK_PLATFORM=check. The %.check file is the source for the 'make check' command. It is a shell script which calls the 'check' command, passing it the rules defined for the source and header files. The check command performs syntax and semantics checking of C++ source files. It also runs the regression tests. A: make check compiles your source code and executes the unit tests. make check_platform is a directive that takes a platform name and checks that the platform is supported and has the appropriate versions of gcc, binutils, etc. The makecheck option is undocumented, but some people have started using it for building automated build environments. Metastases and histological types of non-small cell lung cancer: a study based on stereotactic procedures and fine needle aspiration biopsy. In 34 cases of primary non-small cell lung cancer (NSCLC) with distant metastases, stereotactic procedures (ligature of a lymph node metastasis, puncture of bone metastases and stereotactic fine needle aspiration) allowed metastatic sites to be identified with 100% accuracy. Histopathology confirmed the accuracy of the aspirate in 79% of cases and helped in selecting sites of biopsy. Application of this procedure allowed definitive classification of NSCLC in three histological types: adenocarcinoma (25%), squamous cell carcinoma (32%) and large cell carcinoma (43%). In each type, the percentage of metastatic nodes was independent of the
