Miller This app is great. It really makes you feel like a hacker, making you feel like you can use anything to your full potential and it's exciting. Also very easy to use, it has a friendlier UI than others I've used. It's quite a good tool to have. Helpful review - M. Miller. - Review of Pocket Killbox - Sep 24, 2015 Lori G. Don't be fooled by its name... The original intent of the program was to be a safe and stealthy tool, and in my experience it is. Although the name implies that it is for deleting files for hacking a system, it does not, it does a lot more than that. I used to delete files that I didn't want on my computer before I used this program. (My computer used to be like a sticky mess of dozens of files and directories that I no longer needed.) Now I use this program to make a few secret files that I use all the time, and it is just as safe and stealthy as a malware is. The only thing that sucks

You Might Also Like Reviews Rated 3 out of 5 by jeremy14 from Pizza was totally disappointingI was so excited to order this pizza, but after reading the reviews, I was sorry I did. All of the flavors were very light, tasted like no sauce or seasoning. I usually like super thin crust, but this was as thick as a normal thin crust. The crust was so soft and doughy. Overall, it didn't taste like a pizza and when I opened the box I immediately threw it away. I couldn't stop eating the box though. It was so good, I just couldn't stop. I'm ordering this pizza again tomorrow, hopefully it tastes better and I'm no longer disappointed. Date published: 2015-11-19 Rated 4 out of 5 by Blondie Queen from Peanut Butter Cup PizzaThis is a great pizza, though I would say a little bit on the "cheesier" side. One of my friends, who had tried it, said she much preferred it to the peanut butter cookie pizza. So, it depends on your personal taste, which I think the owner of the pizzeria would have liked to know. I love the box for taking it out for a nice picnic, the cheese does leak out a bit, but it's not a big deal. The crust was great and made me want to eat one right off the baking sheet. I really liked the taste of the brownies on the back of the box, in particular. One of my favorite treats. I would definitely order this pizza again. Date published: 2015-03

Ransomware is a malicious program that encrypts and deletes a whole bunch of files on a hard drive. This is intended to block any possibility of accessing these files and wiping out your important data. Mac users might think that they're safe, as their operating system prevents ransomware from entering the system. Unfortunately, this is not the case. The thing is, ransomware can be hiding in any software or in a 'hidden file'. How to protect yourself from ransomware? There are many ways to prevent getting hit by a program like this: • Use antivirus software. • Turn on auto-run security software on your Mac. • Don't download any suspicious links from the Internet. • Use apps that monitor downloaded files and allow you to prevent any download to proceed. • Research the websites you're visiting. Make sure they're safe and are not infected with ransomware. • Change your passwords. You might have heard about ransomware. You might have even been hit by it. If you're wondering whether you've been infected, or whether your friends have been hit, just put on your detective cap: the first step in finding out is knowing what is ransomware. This malicious software is spread like wildfire on the Internet. One of its most common tactics is to spread via spam. If you receive a message from an unknown sender asking you to download a file, just delete it. A different tactic is displaying pop-ups. If you ever come across any of these, don't respond. Your first step should be to close the program. You can press the [cmd + Q] keys to shut down the program. After closing it, you should go to
