Tolerability and renal effects of idarubicin in a high-risk population. In an open-label study, a steady-state regimen of idarubicin (11 mg/m²/day x 5) was given to 23 patients with high-risk acute lymphoblastic leukemia (ALL). Seventeen patients completed more than one treatment cycle, and three patients remained off study after four cycles of idarubicin. Dosage was reduced in only one patient. The major side effects were moderate to severe nausea (8/23), vomiting (11/23), alopecia (21/23), and stomatitis (18/23). Of all patients, only one required transfusion of packed cells, and no patient developed toxicity leading to death. Cardiac evaluation before and during idarubicin treatment included serial electrocardiograms and exercise tests, and serial serum electrolytes. Only three patients showed one or more clinically significant abnormalities, none of which caused treatment delay. Nonhematological toxicity was mild and infrequent, especially hematological toxicity, as reported previously. Serum creatinine levels were obtained before therapy and at the end of treatment. Creatinine levels increased slightly by 0.8 mg/dl on average during idarubicin administration, but no patient required a dose adjustment or any other antiemetics. Thus, no new toxicity was noted with the combination of cyclophosphamide and idarubicin. Idarubicin therapy appears to be well tolerated by this high-risk ALL population. Litecoin Trading Signals Software / Portfolio Started in 2013, BitMEX.com has become one of the largest crypto trading platforms on the planet. The platform allows margin trading, but its primary focus is bitcoin futures and pairs with other major crypto-currencies. Since 2013, the exchange has pioneered a decentralized exchange where customers can easily trade without a middleman – an idea that has become a hot trend in the financial sector. Currently, BitMEX is not open to public investors, and is only available to professional investors and traders. This is not a free application, and it would cost money to use it. However, there is no service fee if you are placing orders or withdrawing funds – as long as the transactions are carried out on crypto coins. So, this is certainly worth a try. How it Works If you want to do your own trading, there is a dedicated Litecoin trading signals section. It features a very good service that gathers the best offers from brokers who provide you with signals at a fixed rate. Then, BitMEX relays all the orders at different price levels to your order book on the platform. This means you can place orders at different price levels and BitMEX will give you the best matching price. If that is not what you prefer, you can place an order at the best price and the exchange will automatically execute the order at the best available price. It also has a Litecoin wallet where you can deposit and withdraw funds to and from the exchange. No registration needed There is no login required to use Litecoin trading signals on BitMEX. As long as you have the API key, you are ready to go. However, you will need the API key with decryption when accessing the exchange's logbook. You can use the BitMEX API to read or update your profile to add your additional data, and to activate or suspend your account. Once activated, all your data is saved on BitMEX, so you can view it whenever you want. The application contains detailed information about your orders as well as your balance and account details. It also displays the trading rate in USD, and the USD price in BTC. There is even a Litecoin button for trading on the exchange. Conclusion The Litecoin trading signals option is very convenient but it is not free. You will have to pay for it, and the price depends on the volume of Icecoin is a digital currency that is based on a leading energy-based cryptocurrency. This currency is a token that works on the principle of using natural energy sources, which are the basis of commercial transactions, to ensure its stability. Icecoin is derived from Lisk, which was founded by Max Kordek and Matej Kociąga. Lisk is a smart contract engine that supports decentralized applications on a blockchain, allowing for the creation of new protocols. Lisk is designed for different purposes and has actually focused on the resource-saving environment. It is self-sustaining, which means that as it is used, this resource is used and will help to reduce environmental pollution. Icecoin is an interesting project that follows the same principles as its parent, but differs in several ways. Rather than using its own energy-based token, it has re-launched the ICO of Lisk, which generated a total of $127 million. Icecoin also has its own blockchain, which is secure and performs at a high speed. In order to support scalability, this currency is based on a hybrid of Proof of Work and Proof of Stake, called Proof of Stake with Staking Retention, which is the basis of the Hybrid PoW/PoS consensus algorithm. Icecoin is
