Get Familiar With Photoshop In the screenshot at the top of the page, select the text tool to select it and then resize the text to your liking. To make the text appear like a logo, select the text tool again, set the font to "Lavender Script" and choose a color that's similar to the color of your logo. After changing the font color, click the "Fill" button at the top of the "Layers" palette to make the text on the layer be the same color as the image layer. For the example here, I've created a transparent logo because the letters on the text layer are also a transparent layer and overlaid onto the image layer. Turn the text layer's visibility down to

"Transparent." Select the "Create a New Layer" command at the top of the Layers palette and name the new layer "Transparency." The newly created layer will appear on the top of your layers palette. To manipulate the transparency of the "Transparency" layer, click the layer's "Lock to Selection" icon at the top of the Layers palette. This will lock the transparency of the layer so that you can only move the layer's transparency. To make an image appear to be transparent, simply set the foreground color and background color to the same color. Now click and drag the "Transparency" layer to reveal the transparency of the original image on the transparency layer. Here's how it looks when there is transparency on the "Transparency" layer. This is an image with a transparent background. Click the "Create a New Layer" command at the top of the Layers palette and name the new layer "Oil." Select the "Oil" layer to make the changes to the oil layer. To select the "Oil" layer, click and drag it to the bottom of your layers palette. Create the colors in the logo by using the "Channels" pallet to access the color channels in an image. Click the "Channels" icon at the top of the Layers palette. The layers palette will display the colors of an image on the left side, and a color mask for the colors on the right side. Copy a color from the color mask by pressing CTRL+C and paste to another color by pressing CTRL+V. Select the "Oil" layer. Select the "Channels
