STAT6, a latent transcription factor regulated by a cytosolic kinase, induces the expression of activation-induced deaminase (AID).

Activation-induced cytidine deaminase (AID) is required for class switch recombination (CSR) and somatic hypermutation (SHM) of immunoglobulin (Ig) genes. Although AID is expressed constitutively in B cells and is activated by IL-4 signaling, it is unknown what regulates AID expression. Here we report that an intracellular kinase, STAT6, is required for AID expression in activated primary B cells. STAT6, a latent transcription factor, is activated by Janus tyrosine kinases (JAKs) and translocates to the nucleus upon JAK3 activation. Importantly, activation of JAK3 induces AID expression, and a treatment with a JAK3 inhibitor suppresses AID expression. JAK3 activation by IL-4 induces AID expression, and a JAK3 inhibitor also inhibits AID expression. Stimulation of B cells with the anti-IgM Ab induces an AID expression through a STAT6 pathway, but not through a JAK3 pathway. In addition, the expression of AID has been found in STAT6(-/-) mice, and STAT6(-/-) B cells do not carry an AID induction system. We conclude that STAT6 regulates AID expression by its own activation, and AID expression is involved in B cell activation. Daniel J. Kadmon Daniel J. Kadmon (born May 11, 1947) is
