to bear arms. If a gun owner is prohibited from bearing arms, it is argued, the government has no right to act on behalf of the public interest. This argument is, unfortunately, a common fallacy. Those who support gun control often believe that the Second Amendment was written in 1791 to enable the people to defend themselves against a government that might enact gun control laws. So as we see government encroaching on our rights to bear arms, some people believe that the rights of the people are in grave danger and must be defended with guns. But the Second Amendment is not a right to bear arms. The Founders never intended it to be such, because they never believed it was necessary for the people to be armed in order to defend themselves against a tyrannical government. Instead, the Second Amendment was meant to limit the power of the federal government. By the time of the writing of the Constitution, the Articles of Confederation had

For example, an IC die may include an active circuit area and one or more passive circuit areas, such as a ground ring. During assembly of an IC die into a package, one or more solder joints may be formed that electrically couple the IC die to a leadframe or other type of package substrate. A package substrate has a plurality of conductive pattern elements to which each of the leads of the leadframe or other type of package substrate may be electrically coupled. For example, the conductive pattern elements are electrically coupled to the IC die through the solder joints. A metal-oxide-semiconductor (MOS) transistor may be formed on the IC die. The MOS transistor has a gate, a source, and a drain. During IC die operation, the drain may be configured to provide a drain current to the IC die, such as to charge one or more nodes of the IC die. The IC die may include a ground path, which may be the package substrate, that prevents the drain current from bypassing the active circuit area of the IC die and flowing directly to the ground potential. The gate may be formed over the active circuit area of the IC die, which creates an electrical barrier between the active circuit area of the IC die and the drain. The IC die may include a dielectric layer positioned over the gate, which electrically isolates the gate from the IC die and

However, unlike InSight that corrects the D value for steam oxidation, the method in TFCALC does not account for the (ignorantly) assumed value of D in the real process.The primary goal of this application is to develop and fully characterize a rapid MRI system at 7T to rapidly detect/localize focal white matter abnormalities in infant human subjects. This system will be integrated with a new form of ultrafast spin-echo, T2-weighted MRI for the functional differentiation of normal and abnormal myelinated and unmyelinated tissue. This research has the potential to dramatically improve the diagnosis of white matter disorders in the pediatric
