- Pauline Murray & Marilyn McLeod With Saturday's hit single from Pauline Murray and Marilyn McLeod's debut album 'Divine Divine' is proud to present it's soundtrack video, available now to download from the official Decca Records YouTube channel! On a warm summer's evening in 1989, a young actress with a soaring voice and a bright smile left her hometown of Sunderland to train at RADA, London's prestigious drama school. Mary Pennington was pursuing her dream as an actress and singer and it was then that she met her husband, musician and songwriter Paul Winstanley. Paul was taking part in a music competition at RADA and during a break from filming, she told him she loved him. It was a courtship of such fine sensibilities, that Paul and Mary found themselves favourably accepted at one of the most electrifying music festivals in London, the Lovebox Festival. They loaded a couple of suitcases with records and danced for hours. The duo, who shared a similar musical style, would often spend the rest of the summer travelling around Europe, only in time finding their own studio in a small flat just off the Southbank in London, where they began to record some of Paul's demos. The soundtrack, produced by Julian Mendelsohn and Marilyn McLeod, finds singer Mary Pennington embedded in classical music, drawing on repertoire ranging from Bach to Wagner, as well as gliding on effortlessly across the open harmony of love. Paul's gentle rhythms and melody recall Opus At Night by Dan Deacon, Anthony Howard and The Cinematic Orchestra, with strings melding into a rippling, bass-driven sonic tapestry. Paul wrote the electronic side of the album which features Mary and his long-term collaborator, producer, engineer and writer, Marilyn McLeod. In 1994, Paul and Marilyn left London to return to their home in the Scotland's Highlands and in 1995, moved to London's East End, where they set themselves up with an Ampeg SVT, Moogerfooger, a love for ale and a refusal to turn down the music when the party called. In turn, Mary and Marilyn met London's No Recordings when they moved in over a brick wall to the studio flat that would see the birth of Divin Divine, a pop album of incredible technique and undeniable heart. The album was recorded within the first year of their partnership and was reflective of how much the two of them spent their lives together on Spaceforce is a science-fiction single-player sandbox RPG that focuses on tactics and player freedom. A shared, open-ended universe allows players to explore new worlds and colonize new locations. When Spaceforce was developed, one of the main goals was to ensure that each player has the ability to freely explore any world they wish, no matter the level, gender, class, race, weapon or armor they choose to play. Spaceforce takes place in a sci-fi universe inspired by the classic space opera of sci-fi media, films, and fiction. Players are able to develop their character in many ways, from their race, gender, level, armor and weapon to their skills and active and passive points. Spaceforce is an all-in-one, free-to-play, open universe RPG created with a shared universe in mind. By sharing new worlds and colonies through fully-featured in-game chat systems, players can explore a universe of eight distinct worlds and hundreds of locations, all with their own unique story and characters that blend the best of the past and present.

Features: Hand-made single-player sandbox RPG that doesn't take itself too seriously Procedurally generated worlds will always be different, but players will always be able to take a route they like and see what happens Multiplayer gameplay via local network and online (with dedicated servers) Events and special celebrations will reward players with useful effects Sidequests and daily objectives will keep you coming back for more Loot drops and crafting is an important part of Spaceforce Spaceforce features various crafting systems, including armor and weapon crafting that will require the use of specific materials and parts to create Players will be able to craft items from a variety of materials, including crafting tables, which may require lesser materials or help raise the quality of the material Your inventory will become your inventory from the get-go, so be prepared to pack your bags Spaceforce uses lua scripting to utilize the vast resources available Spaceforce features several events that take place on a weekly or monthly basis, including seasonal events like Harvest Moon, Halloween and World Thanksgiving Different planets in the universe will have their own unique biomes, which are affected by season, weather, biomes, culture and occupation Interacting with your environment and other characters will provide unique benefits Spaceforce offers players three types of armour and five types of weapons to
