In order to set up a database and create the necessary schema for the data I need to gather, I was wondering if there is any way to upload images to a web-based form. The images will be displayed with the form so they can be used to fill out the data. A: This is a broad question so depending on the website this could be discussed in many different areas of a python web site. Are you using Flask? If you are then you can use ImageField and a Base64 decode library Python Flask ImageField For example: from flask import Flask, render_template app = Flask(__name__) @app.route('/') def hello(): return render_template('hello.html', name=name) @app.route('/', methods=['GET']) def show_image(): img_fields = ['test.png'] return render_template('show_image.html', img_fields=img_fields) if __name__ == '__main__': app.run() show_image.html {% extends "base.html" %}

However, I don't know how to make this work with a ModelViewSet, or if it's even the right way to do it. For example, I don't know how to add a get_serializer method, or which serializer attribute to use. A: For your use case it is advisable to use pre_save signal for adding all tags. You can check if the tags are set and the user is the one who is making the change, I'll show an example: from django.db.models.signals import post_save, pre_save def add_all_tags(sender, 6d1f23a050
