if the now sms & mms gateway should process mms messages received by the attached modem, the receive mms messages setting should be enabled. the mms settings dialog will display a dialog with additional configuration settings that are required for enabling the gateway to be able to receive mms messages from the operator network. please note that a dedicated gsm modem device (not a phone acting as a modem) is required in most instances in order to support the receiving of mms messages, and in most cases the modem device must also support gprs. for additional configuration information, please refer to connecting to an operator mmSC using a gprs modem. for additional configuration information on processing received mms messages, please refer to 2-way mms support. unable to initialize modem: error xxxxxxxx from lineopen: this error message indicates that the windows telephony api (tapi) subsystem could not open a connection to the modem. in most cases, this is the same as the error 5 access denied error above, indicating that another windows application is already communicating with the modem. we suggest following the same suggestions as offered above. in some cases it may be necessary to de-install the windows modem driver, and re-install it. you can use any typical terminal program such as'screen','minicom', 'picocom' or even simply stty/echo/cat to communicate. be aware of translations that may occur based on your terminal and/or configuration of these terminal programs. for example, modem at interpreters expect to receive commands terminated by a cr (carriage return, hex 0x0d code) and will not respond if your terminal program is translating cr's to lf's (beware of using screen within a screen session for example, which will do this).

Gsm Gprs Modem Driver

the sms access setting specifies whether sms messages should be sent by the modem over the circuit-switched or packet-switched network. this setting is not limited to gsm and gprs environments, but also applies to edge and 3g/wcdma/umts. setting the value to default uses the default as configured on the modem. setting the value to gsm tells the modem to use the circuit-switched network for sending sms. setting the value to gprs tells the modem to use the packet-switched network. verify that the modem device is connected to the computer correctly. for some modems, the modem cable may be connected to the computer's modem port or to a serial port. for other modems, the modem may be connected to the computer via a serial port. refer to the manufacturer's documentation for details on how to connect the modem to your computer. also, ensure that the modem is not powered off when the pc is turned on. to turn on a powered-off modem, plug the cable into the modem, and then plug the modem into the serial port on the computer. restart the modem by pressing the reset button. if the modem powers on successfully, it is ready to be used. some modems may need to be set to a "loopback" mode to work. to set the modem to a loopback mode, remove the modem from the serial port and plug the cable into the computer again. the modem should automatically configure itself to the loopback mode, and the modem will appear as a serial device again. to test that the loopback mode is working correctly, you can telnet to the modem's ip address. refer to the modem's documentation for details on how to set the loopback mode.
