4X4 Off-Road Redneck Racing [RIP] License Key

off road xtreme contacted bilstein and asked about doing a story on the new bilstein b8 shocks. they had plans to call them b1, b2, and b3, but bilstein was quick to interject and they had to explain their naming system. i wanted to see how these changes worked on the track. to do that, we would need a vehicle that could be modified for the new shocks. from the sizes of the shocks, they would be a direct fit in the nitto tires and the lack of changes in steering and suspension geometry made it an easy fit. perhaps the biggest benefit to 4x4 off-road redneck racing [rip] license key is that you simply get a great high quality suspension kit. besides the shock, an essential part of any on/off-road kit is a good quality leaf spring. the 4x4 off-road redneck racing [rip] license key we tested accommodates both 34mm as well as 40mm leaf springs and is the only bumper to come with a dual protection plate guard. the end result is a bulked up and stiffened rubber bush life, with a level of protection that's unmatched. bilstein shocks absorbers are not the only player in the game. as the off-road industry grows and evolves, we have seen multiple shock manufacturers come into play. like bilstein, the major producers and boutique shock makers are also bolstering direct fit vehicle-specific products. across the board, certain vehicles are more inclined to receive interest and support from the aftermarket industry. off road xtreme advises to carefully research a vehicle before purchasing to determine its off-road viability and available aftermarket upgrades.

for a wide range of custom race applications. the three and four tube bypass shocks are sized in 60mm or 70mm and can be ordered with remote or piggyback reservoirs. the coilovers are available as 46mm or 60mm piston diameter configurations and accept 2.0-inch or 2.65-inch outer body diameter coilover springs. for extra high-performance applications, bilstein recommends upgrading the 60mm remote reservoir with the anti-
