if(!class_exists('vrccronjob')){ require_once('../wp-cron/vrccronjob.php'); } } vik rent car don't forget to register the cron job at the end of the plugin or else you will get an error. so, register the cron job by adding this code at the end of the plugin: in this case, after the payment, vikrentcar will be able to charge a bank transfer fee for each order. this is the way to charge the customer for the bank transfer (that is the way you would charge the customer if you were using a service like paypal). if the order is not confirmed, the bank transfer will be charged the same way as for an order paid by credit card. first of all, you have to create the file class.php inside wp-content/plugins/vik_rent_car/ plugin folder. this file will be used by vikrentcar to manage all operations within your car rental. this file can be empty or have only methods that should be declared inside the file. it is possible to create a custom method of payment for vikrentcar. in this case, you will be able to define whether the bank transfer will be applied as a discount, a charge or it will be displayed to the customer. if the method of payment is a charge, vikrentcar will be able to display a modal window with the total amount of the order. the customer will be able to confirm or cancel the order. the report framework is a part of the system that can be extended through the creation of apposite php classes that extend the parent interface. reports are useful to obtain financial statistics as well as to produce calculations of tax/levy. by default, vik rent car is installed with several types of reports to generate and/or export data: revenue, rate plans revenue, occupancy ranking and top countries. in the screenshot below you can see the calculation of the occupancy report obtained on a specific range of dates for the rental orders received.
