Srinagar: The police on Monday arrested four men over a “land grabbing” incident in Srinagar. The incident took place in south Kashmir’s Handwara town and the accused have been booked under the Indian Penal Code (IPC) section 384 (extortion). According to police, the matter came to light when a shop owner approached the Hapur SHO with an FIR against one of the four persons accused of forcefully acquiring his shop. “The SHO, along with his wife, went to the spot and found the four accused to be involved in extortion,” said an officer privy to the investigation. As the matter was brought to light, the SHO and his wife kept a close watch on the four accused to gather further information. On Monday, when the accused learnt about the police action, they fled. “The police searched for them and finally located them at a house where they were hiding. They were arrested and booked under IPC section 384,” the officer added. According to the SHO, he had received a call on Sunday from a shop owner who said four persons had forcibly entered his shop and he had no other option but to approach the police. “We went to the spot and a case under section 384 was registered,” he said. “We are going to file the FIR in a day or two. We had information that one of the accused works in the political department of a hospital and the other three work at private hospitals,” the officer said. The FIR has been lodged with Handwara police station. “If you
